

Custom millwork from Sarana

PT Sarana Kreasi Lestari

is an Indonesian millwork company, “specialized” in doors, windows and all other solid timber building products (except structural system)

The production is supported by the company's own design and engineering team that works together with project architects to create the lifestyle the customers are looking for

Access to hardware from all over the world assures that Sarana can provide a large variety of sliding and folding door systems for the most daring architectural “design”

Architects and developers familiar with Sarana's artistic and technical capabilities join forces with them to create unique solutions and details for their properties

Sarana has an elaborate training system that makes its carpenters comfortable in dealing with traditional joinery as well as the most contemporary styling

manufacturing operations are complemented by a network of individual craftsmen, each with his or her own individual

Although doors and windows form the foundation of Sarana's production, other millwork, such as flooring, ceiling boards, and many other trim and decorative elements, form a steady increasing part of the output

Multi panel door systems, both sliding and folding, are an important part of the Sarana product line

The quality of Sarana's production is certified to comply with the most stringent European standards. A Dutch NGO (SKH) inspects the operations six times a year to confirm continued compliance with these standards

Because much of Sarana's output is destined for the tropical beaches of The Pacific and Caribbean Islands, Sarana has its own testing facilities to monitor the wind and water performance of the doors and windows. The company is licensed by Warnock Hersey to produce fire rated doors both single and double for periods up to 90 minutes
